

Please do not overturn New Jersey's Do Not Call law. Even with the law in place, we must get 4-5 calls per week from telemarketers who are allegedly sorry when I point out I have placed my name on the list. I can only imagine what would happen should the law be overturned.

If I have done business with a firm in the last 18 months, then the firm could just as well reach me by mail. I find most calls to be disturbing. The letters I can handle very well.

Thank you.
